

Sinclair Broadcasting's anti-Kerry "documentary" plans represent a very dangerous precedent. The FCC should take immediate proactive action to either a) insist they refrain from blatant partisan programs in the guise of a documentary, or b) insist that they provide rebuttal time of equal length and promotion immediately following it for balance.

Also, the FCC should conduct a review of Sinclair's license in light of this abuse of the public airways that they were entrusted with.

The FCC should also re-examine the merits of allowing consolidation of many stations into few large corporations that can exercise broad distortion of the information broadcast to our citizens.

We Americans expect the FCC to give priority to protecting free speech and media, not the bottom line of huge corporations.
